Python Django Fullstack

Course Duration - 45 Days

Python was used to create the open-source web application framework known as Django. The major purposes of Django's development were to address the issues with complex database-driven websites and to produce web application frameworks with Django functionality.

The Python framework Django covers every aspect of web development, from managing requests and responses to generating dynamic HTML pages from templates and streamlining database access and upkeep. Everything is included in this course and is addressed in great depth. In this course, Django is taught from the ground up. Starting at the bottom and working our way up, we'll gradually learn how to create, run, and add functionality to Django projects.
